- sense of achievement • relax after work • family singing
- wrap-up: comfort zone • come in handy • take pride in

SAMPLE ANSWER • BAND 8

I • Intro (what)	I'd like to talk about a skill I recently learned: playing the guitar. I started last year as a complete beginner, and I'm still far from perfect, but I can now play several songs for my family.
P • How I learned it	I decided to take it up on a whim after hearing a friend play at a picnic. It took me about two months to get the hang of the basic chords, mostly through trial and error and online tutorials. No matter how tired I was, I tried to practise for twenty minutes every evening, and gradually I made steady progress.
P • Who helped me	My cousin Bobur, who has played since school, gave me some pointers and constructive feedback whenever we met. He's a patient instructor, so I never felt embarrassed about my mistakes. Having a friend like that kept me motivated when my fingers hurt.
E • Reason 1	The first reason it matters to me is that it gives me a real sense of achievement. Rarely have I felt as proud as on the day I played a whole song without stopping. It also helps me relax after a stressful week at work.
E • Reason 2	On top of that, it has become a way to connect with people. At family gatherings everyone sings along, and that has brought us closer. If I hadn't started learning, I wouldn't have discovered how much music means to me.
W • Wrap-up	So, all in all, it was a rewarding experience that pushed me to step out of my comfort zone. It's a skill that will come in handy for the rest of my life, and I take pride in every new song I learn.
