SAMPLE ANSWER • BAND 8

I • Intro (what)	I'd like to talk about the biggest turning point in my life, which was moving from my small hometown to Tashkent to study at university. It was a drastic change, and in many ways it shaped who I am today.
P • When it happened	It happened about three years ago, just after I finished school. I'd always lived with my family in a quiet town, so when I got a place at a university in the capital, it came as a bit of a shock. Within a month, I'd packed my bags and left.
P • How you felt	As for how I felt, I had mixed feelings. I was thrilled about the opportunity, but I felt out of place on my first day, and, to be honest, I almost got cold feet at the station. What struck me most was how fast everything moved. Never had I felt so nervous, yet I also felt strangely alive.
E • Reason 1	The first way it affected me was that it helped me grow as a person. I had to cook, manage money and make friends from scratch. It was not until I lived alone that I truly understood how much my parents had done for me.
E • Reason 2	On top of that, it broadened my horizons. I met people from different regions, learned new customs and gained confidence in expressing my opinions. Had I not stepped out of my comfort zone, I would never have discovered my interest in teaching.
W • Wrap-up	So, all in all, that move was a blessing in disguise. It was tough at first, but I came out stronger, and it changed my life for the better.
