- Hard work paid off • proud parents

- Cherish the memory • motivation to keep going

SAMPLE ANSWER • BAND 8

I • Intro (what happened)	I'd like to talk about a day to remember: the day I found out I had reached the final of a regional English competition in Tashkent. It happened three years ago, when I was seventeen, and it was one of the happiest moments of my life.
P • When it was	It was a warm Saturday in May. I had spent months preparing, practising speeches in front of the mirror and recording myself, so I was incredibly nervous. Hardly had I sat down at breakfast when my teacher called to tell me the result.
P • Who was there	As for the people around me, my parents and younger sister were sitting right next to me, and a few minutes later half of our mahalla had heard the news. Not only did my neighbours come over to congratulate me, but they also brought plates of samsa, and soon the whole yard was in high spirits.
E • Reason 1	The main reason I felt over the moon was that it showed my hard work had paid off. When it comes to learning English, progress can feel painfully slow, so this was real proof that I was moving forward.
E • Reason 2	On top of that, seeing my parents' faces made it special. My father, who rarely shows emotion, was overcome with emotion and hugged me for a long time, and I felt a surge of joy I had never felt before. What made me happiest was knowing I had made them proud.
W • Wrap-up	So, all in all, that moment is etched in my memory. Whenever I feel discouraged, I think back to that day, and it lifts my spirits and reminds me why I keep working so hard.
